Duxbury Mariner to Cease Publication

The Duxbury Mariner will cease publication after its February 25th issue, according to an announcement printed in last week's edition. The Duxbury Mariner is published by Community Newspaper Company in Marshfield.

The Duxbury Mariner has entered into an agreement with the Duxbury Clipper which will allow each newspaper to cross-sell advertising into the other newspaper. In addition, the Clipper will assume all unfulfilled Mariner subscriptions that are currently Clipper non-subscribers.

"Let me clarify one thing: there has been no 'acquisition' on the part of the Mariner or the Clipper," said David Cutler, Clipper publisher. "We want our loyal readers to understand that the Clipper remains 100 percent independently owned and operated by the Cutler family. My parents, John and Bobbie Cutler, who started the Clipper 49 years ago, would have it no other way."
